for military expenses in Cuba. The Daily News denies the assertion of the Paris Débats that Queen Victoria has written to the Emperor of Austria expressing her gratification at the appointment of Baron Haymerle as Minister of Foreign Affairs, and says that the Marquis of Salisbury merely wrote to the British Ambassador at Vienna, instructing him to express the satisfaction of the government at

An affray took place yesterday near Castle. bar. One man was killed. A Mr. Smith and his son, agents of the Marquis of Sligo, were driving near Mulrauny, when they were fired on. The younger Smith returned the fire, killing one of the assailants, all of whom were dis guised. A ficroe struggle ensued, and the Smiths escaping went for the police. When they returned the body of the man who was killed in the fight had been removed by his confederates. It is to be noted, however, that the accounts of the affair are very conflicting. The Marquis of Headfort and his agent have received letters threatening their death unless the rent is reduced. The Castlebar affray is generally believed to be an agrarian outrage. A later despatch states that the body of the man who was killed was found in a bog and is that of a militiaman. SPAIN AND SAN DOMINGO.

It is officially announced at Madrid that the government of San Domingo will dismiss the military officers who caused to be shot the two insurgent Dominican generals taken last winter from a Spanish vessel at Puerto Plata, on board of which they had gone for refuge, and will pay an indomnity to the heirs of the slaughtered generals; also, that San Domingo will salute the BISMARCK AND MOLTKE.

A Berlin despatch to the Cologne Guzette says:-"It is regarded as certain here that Prince Bismarck will not take an active part in the forthcoming session of the Prussian Diet. He will be represented in the Diet by Count Stolberg-Wernigerode, Vice President of the Prussian Ministry." A Berlin despatch to the Times says :- "Field Marshal Count Von Moltke, Chief of the Imperial Staff, has returned to Kolmar from the autumn manceuvres with a number of staff officers, it is believed with a view to considering how Upper Alsace and Baden could best be defended in the event of a French invasion." The Standard's correspondent at Berlin reports that Prince Bismarck today received M. D'Onbril, the Russian Ambasor to Germany, and Prince Orioff, the Russian Ambassador to France. He assured them that no design to injure Russin was discussed during his visit to Vienna, and he believed Prince Gortschakoff would visit him if possible. AT THE GATES OF CABUL.

Lientenant Kinloch, on the way to join his regiment, was ambuscaded and killed. Sir Frederick Roberts' advance guard consists of one cavalry brigade, two guns, two companies of the Seventy-second infantry, the Fifth Punjaub infantry and the Twenty-third Pioneers. A despatch to the Daily News from Kushi says unconfirmed rumors are in circulation there that four regiments from Turkistan are marching to join the mutineers at Cabul.

At Toulouse he said:—"My colleagues and I are resolved to carry out, without flinching, the task we have undertaken, because we are convinced that the majority of the nation is with us, and that Parliament will give us its support." At the Toulouse garrison he added :- "There are two things for which the government will not stint money-popular education and the army." THE PRISON LABOR QUESTION.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 1, 1879.

A committee of five appointed by Governor McClellan, of New Jersey, under a joint resolution of the Legislature of that State, to investigate the subject of prison labor and its relation to other labor, met at the liotel Aquidneck here this afternoon, As the subject in question had a scope beyond the limits of any one State it was deemed advisable to confer with the commissions of other States appointed for similar purposes. By arrangement the commission of the States of Connecticut and Massachusetts were expected to be present, but only the one from Connecticut put in an appearance. It was decided to have a more extended conference at New Haven on October 9, when New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Massachusetts will be represented. In view of the decision the meeting to-day resolved into one of conference and interchange of views in order that the gentlemen might be better able to discuss the subject at the next meeting. The committee are anxious to propose some plan which can be adopted by the States mentioned above, and which it is hoped will be generally adopted in order that all may be mutually benefited. PRESIDENT HAYES IN INDIANA.

ESCORTED TO THE BORDERS BY GOVERNOR CULLOM-GUNPOWDER AND STEAM WHISTLE TRIBUTES-WARM RECEPTION AT INDIAN-APOLIS.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 1, 1879.

Last night's reception at Governor Cullom's of cial residence in Springfield became most delightful toward eleven o'clock, when the great public, numpering four or five thousand, having rushed in, had also rushed out again. The old and young people of Springfield's best society came in carriages, silks, satin and swallow tails. "This house," said the Governor, in the smoking room, "never held so man; in it before." This morning the President's party paid the State Fair another visit, and, seated in coaches, saw the prize animals driven before them. The return drive afforded a parting glimpse of the Lincoln monument, Larkin G. Mead's masterpiece. The work is incomplete, although the statue of Lincoln, standing at the south front of the shaft, toward the city, was unveiled in 1874. Two of the four bronze onument are in position, representing "Infantry" and "the Navy." The other two groups..."Cav alry" and "Artillery"...are not yet cast. Lincoln alry" and "Artillery"—are not yet cast. Lincoln, with the emancipation proclamation in his left hand and the pen that signed it in the other, looks benignly from his pedestal at the Pligrims, who pause to gaze and to ponder on his marvellous career. Strange, homely figure! quaint man! The other day President Hayes told a crowd at Neoshe Falls the old story of his entertaining a widow who called to ask for her son's release from death on the morrow, with a humorous aneedote about a colonel and a mule driver. "Madame," said Lincoln, "your hurry about your boy's neck reminds me of a plous colonel who got all the men of his profane regiment to agree to let him do the swearing, and who called up a mule driver one day for breaking the pledge. Oh!" said the driver, but you were not there, Colonel, and the swearing had to be done then." The ancedote having been told to the trembling widow, the hand that signed away the bonding of 4,000,000 blacks turned and signed the release of the widow's son. The same sinewy hand was laid on the head of the writer or this despatch at the White House, in 1861, and the shrewd remark was made, "My son, you may order a second lieutenant's uniform as soon as you can get any general to certify to me that he would like to have you on his staff." But here the hand lightened and the President's eyes twinkled. "If I were in your place, without a wife and without a family, I'd wait and take my chances in the next draft." The literal fact is, for since I have recorded this incident its sequel may as well follow, that the next draft netted the very person who was thus commended to it by Abraham Lincoln.

the West has been demonstrated by the loss of one man's arm to the elbow and the mutilation of another man's hand since the President left Chicago eight days ago.

At Decatur, where they were met by an immense concourse of citizons, with military and music, there was no speaking, the screaming of locomotive and factory whistles making it impossible for the President to be heard, and he simply bowed and thanked the managers of the whistles for saving him from making a speech. At Crawfordsville, Ind., another large gathering of people were met. Speechinaking was prevented here by the breaking down of an overloaded platform, and before order could be restored it was time for the train to leave. The party then passed on to Indianapolis, arriving here at half-past six, and were greeted with a Presidential salute from artillery stationed near the depot. The streets about and leading to the railway station were packed with people. The party were met by a committee of arrangements and escorted by military and music to their hotel. The city is in holiday attire. Decorations, illuminations and private exhibitions of fireworks are seen in every direction to-night, while the throngs on the sidewalks and the arrivals of visitors with bands of music from throughout the State indicate that as great a number of persons will be within the city limits to-morrow as ever before.

The public reception to President Hayes and General Sherman took place at the Court House, where the party arrived at half-past eight P. M. They were met at the entrance by Mayor Caven, who delivered a short address of welcome on behalf of the city, to which the President responded as follows:

Ms. Mayor and Pkilow Cuttzkns—I am toid by the committee of arrangements that I am not expected to speak during my stay in Indianapolis, except, possibly, at the fair grounds to-morrow, I will, therefore, in a single sentence, return thanks to the Mayor and Committee of Arrangements, and to the citizons whom they represent, for their very friendly welcome, and bid

WHY THE GENERAL MADE A PERSONAL EXPLA-NATION AT STOCKTON ON TUESDAY EVENING. [BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1, 1879. General Grant's speech at Stockton yesterday is the theme of general interest here to-day. The General's statement was made in the presence of some "forty-niners," who could easily have contradicted him if not truth-ful. This speech sweeps away a wrotched calumny that has circulated all over the Union. He has waited a decade to speak and when he found the time and place he did it effectually. He was not the man known there as "Captain Grant," He was not in the country till 1852. and yesterday the General found it, to the great

THE GREENFIELD MURDER.

AGAINST GREENFIELD.

ALLEGED DISCOVERY OF IMPORTANT EVIDENCE IBY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD, 1 SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 1, 1879. The latest efforts of the prosecution in the Green field wife murder trial have been to show traces of blood, which they claim were inadvertently left by Greenfield himself as he left the house, early on th morning of the murder, on his way to the house of his father. Drops of blood were found on the walk outside the house, where the murdered woman lay, and on the pump handle at the house of the prison and on the pump handle at the house of the prisonor's father, all of which has been attested by several witnesses. Some of them cut out chips upon which marks of blood were found and examined and preserved them carefully. The actions of the prisoner the moraing of the murder, manifesting no emotion and shedding no tears, and whom spoken to regarding it, telling the questioners that somebody had been "stealing his casts too the same night," have been atteated by a large number of persons. Jane Dennison testifies that she had a conversation with Greenfield before the murder, in which he declared that he didn't propose to stay home nights, so that it Alice should happen to be killed they couldn't lay it on him. On the day of the murder the witness told Orlande that she was sorry he did not remain home that night so that he could have protected Alice. She said the prisoner at one time used this expression, "It she cant't be my wife she shall not be the wife of anybody clse."

Mary Thompson testified to hearing a conversation between Mrs. Dennison and Mr. Greenfield; she heard Mrs. Dennison say that "a man that will choke and pound and kick and abuse his wife as you have isn't any too good to kill her?" Mrs, Greenfield then said, "If you knew more about it you would say less;" Greenfield said he didn't pound, kick or choke her very much; they had troubles just as other married people had; Mrs. Dennison said to him, "Why didn't you let your wife go away' why did you kill her?" the prisoner did not reply; Alice once told the witness that she was going to leave the prisoner
because she could stand his abuse no longer.

All were intoxicated and resisted the guards who were sent to arrest them. In the fight which ensued Whitehead fired several shots at one of the guards and made his escape. The rest of the party were taken in charge and are now in jail.

The only business transacted this morning was the reading of the report of the commission in which a comparison between the cost of river and railway transportation was made. Reference was also made to the adoption of the Chapeine system for the Ohio, and the reason is stated to be that American plans had not been tested, and consequently the government declined to experiment. The report strongly urged a thorough test of the plans suggested by Americane.

TAXATION ON MUNICIPAL BONDS.

The Attorney General has written the following opinion:-

The Attorney General has written the following opinion:—

Mr. Jour Haddock.—

In answer to your letter inquiring how town bonds must be assessed, which have been deposited by their owners in certain banks for safe keeping. I have the honor to say that in the cases you mention the bonds should be assessed in the town or ward where he resides, when the assessment is made for all personal estate owned by him, including all personal estate in his possession or under his control, as agent, trustee, guardian, exocutor or administrator (chapter 176, section 2, Laws of 1861). Bonds deposited in a bank for safe-keeping are not in the possession or under the conteol of an agent, within the purview of this statute. The bank has no power over them, and is not responsible for them in case of loss. A bank has no authority to become a tailee of property (60 N. Y., 278). Assessors must ascertain in the best way they can who are the persons liable to assessment within their teritorial jurisdiction. The statute provides that, "between the 1st days of May and July in each year they (the Assessors) shall proceed to ascertain by diffigent inquiry the names of all of the taxable inhabitants in their respective towns or wards, and also all of the taxable property, The mode of executing that duty is left to the intelligence and good judgment of the assessors themselves. The law requires of them fidelity and vigilance in the discharge of their dutes. It does not exect from them more than they are able to perform, nor clothe them with power of compulsory process or any other method than "diligent inquiry" to ascertain what persons and property are liable to taxation. In the cases you mention you are to assess the owners of the bonds, and to ascertain in the best mode you can by whom they are owned.

AN ART CHARITY. A movement is on foot to make a collection of pictures, to be contributed by artists and others, which is to be sold for the benefit of the widow of and anthor who died suddenly while on a recentrip to England. The initiators form a committee of the New York Press Club, which has offered its rooms for the reception and exhibition of the collection previous to its removal for sale to the galleries of the auctioners, George A. A National School of Art Wood Carving has been established in London. It is in charge of Signor Bulletti, an emiment Fiorentine wood carver.

The fifty-third exhibition of the Royai Academy of Berlin opened on August 31. The jury has been severe, and there are only 579 works. Though the general average of merit is higher than usual no work of striking power is found.

The completion of the Cologne Cathedral, which has been 631 years in building, seems now at hand, notwithstanding the well known prediction. Nothing remains to be done but to place the massive stone caps of the two great towers and to fix the two huge crosses which are to surmount the whole—a dangerous and difficult work.

Preparations are now being made for the celebration next year, at the Abbey of Monte Casino, in Italy, of the centenary of its founder, St. Benedict, of Norcia. A band of Benedictines, from the suppressed monastery of Beusen, in the principality of Holenaclieru-Sigmaringen, now inhabit the abbey and are engaged on a series of frescoes, which are said to be very artists and original. The subjects are taken from the Apocalypse.

The following extract from an American paper is a pleasing tentimony to the system of business adopted at this house:—'We visited during our resjourn in London last year the warehouse of Messrs, Jay, the most noted establishment of the kind in the world. In looking through its numerous departments we were able to appreciate the true causes of the distinguished success which has attended the establishment for many years. Messrs, Jay receive large supplies of Costumes and Millinery direct from the first houses in Paris, and they are sold at much more moderate prices than ladies can procure them on the Continent.
